Conservation of Antarctic marine living resources: fishing control

1995/0252(CNS) - 28/05/1996

The committee unanimously adopted the report by A. CANETE. It thus approved the amended proposal for a regulation, whose main aim was to consolidate in a single act all the conservation measures adopted for the conservation of the Antarctic marine living resources. The report once again highlighted the need to improve existing procedures so that Parliament could give its opinion in time, before the provisions on which it was consulted entered into force (in this case, 8 May 1995). Although the Commission was the body responsible for amending this Regulation, the approved motion for a resolution confirmed that it was necessary to enter into a consultation procedure with Parliament and the Council so that they could look at any such amendments in detail.
