Results of the Stability Pact

1995/2026(INI) - 19/05/1995 - Text adopted by Parliament, single reading

In its recommendation to the Council on the results of the stability pact in Europe, the European Parliament acknowledged the beneficial effects of the pact in instituting dialogue with the countries in question but stressed a number of points which would improve the objectives of the pact. In particular, the Council should: - ensure that the stability pact in Europe is monitored and use the political dialogue for which provision is made in the Europe Agreements, the partnership and cooperation agreements, in order to deal with problems of common interest multilaterally; - work within the CSCE in order to guarantee that regional round tables (which allow efficient dialogue between the states in question) continue; - continue its work in consultation with the Council of Europe in this area; - make plans to extend the method introduced by the stability pact to other sensitive zones (Caucasus, Balkans) and, possibly, to the Mediterranean, so that negotiations on a Mediterranean stability pact can be instituted with all the coastal states at the Euro-Mediterranean conference in November 1995.
