Equal treatment for men and women: statutory and occupational social security schemes

1987/1137(COD) - 16/09/1988 - Text adopted by Parliament, 1st reading/single reading

The European Parliament in its first reading made some amendments to the proposed directive. These include: - More precise definitions of "individual entitlements" and "derived entitlements". The former means the entitlements derived from professional activity and entilements conferred under systems which guarantee basic coverage for all citizens. - the entitlement to widow's/widower's benefits apples to established couples living within the limits and in accordance with the provisions laid down by the Member States. - the principle of equal treatment means no discrimination on the grounds of the sex or marital status of the deceased parent or the sex of the orphan, and no distinction between legitimate and natural children. - the possibility for men and women to benefit in the same way from flexible pensions will not constitute an infringement of this directive. - with regard to pensions derived entitlements shall be granted in addition to individual entitlements upto the maximum amount payable under the most favourable entitlement.

Equal treatment for men and women: statutory and occupational social security schemes

1987/1137(COD) - 23/10/1987 - Legislative proposal

This proposal for a Council directive concerns the completion of the implementation of the principle of equal treatment for men and women in statutory and occupational social security schemes. It would complement directives 79/7 and 86/378 which already deal with the principle of equal treatment and would extend the principal to: (a) the provisions of statutory shcemes concerning survivors benefits end family benefits; (b) the corresponding provisions of occupationnal schemes (including those concerning the family benefits of occupational schemes for self-employed workers); (c) the areas excluded or deferred in the two above-mentionned directives; (d) the provisions concerning social assistance, where they are intended to supplement the benefits referred to under (a), (b), (c) or to replace them.

Equal treatment for men and women: statutory and occupational social security schemes

1987/1137(COD) - 16/09/1999

The European Parliament did not confirm the first reading in the context of the codecision procedure of the text voted upon on 16.09.1988 concerning this proposal for a directive and asked the Commission to table a new proposal for a revised directive that would take into account the political undertakings entered into by the Commission, as well developments in the situation in the fields concerned.
